Steve is a state specialist in Community Development Process for the University of Missouri Extension. He serves as the coordinator of the community development academy and has program leadership responsibility for work in community planning, organizational development and building inclusive communities.

Steve has worked as a community development specialist with the University of Missouri Extension since December of 1992. Steve's mix of experience includes two years in the rural areas of Ste. Genevieve County, Missouri, and then four years in the urban areas of St. Louis County and the City of St. Louis. He moved to the campus in 1998. His skills are in leading the development of community organizations, creating community plans, addressing land-use issues, and analyzing community infrastructure.

Internationally, Steve has conducted community development training programs in the Amazon region of Brazil, Guyana, Germany, and Canada. Along with other leaders from the U.S., Latin America, and the Caribbean, Steve completed a fellowship in the International Leadership Development Program, sponsored by the Partners of the Americas and the Kellogg Foundation.

He has an M.A. in Community and Regional Planning and a B.S. in International Affairs from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. He is a certified planner with the American Institute of Certified Planners and a member of the American Planning Association. Steve serves as the executive director of the Missouri/Penn Chapter of the Partners of the Americas.

Community Interaction

How do we know Community?

- ❖ The community is something external to us and to be acted on, predicted and managed.
- ❖ We are the community and create it through our ongoing processes of interaction.
- ❖ Do you consider yourself an insider or outsider in the communities you work?

Domahidy, M. (2003). Using theory to frame community and practice. Journal of the Community Development Society, 34(1), 75-84.

Live Meeting Poll

Insider versus Outsider

Think about a project you have worked on in one of your communities. How do you think the community perceived you in that context?

- As an insider, someone who had a stake in what we were doing.
- As a partial insider, someone who lived in the community but was representing the University.
- As an outsider, someone who doesn't live in the community and only participates in the community because of my position with the University.
- As a partial outsider, someone who doesn't live in the community but because of the organization I am widely viewed as part of the community.
- As a partial outsider, someone who lived in the community but was representing the University.
